Whereas, Michigan's community action agencies assist nearly 235,000 families statewide by providing a variety of services, such as early childhood development, senior services, affordable housing, food assistance, energy assistance, and job training programs, among others; and

Whereas, Since 2009, community action agencies, in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Human Services, have successfully administered weatherization assistance program funds which support energy-efficiency improvements in more than 36,000 Michigan homes; and

Whereas, Community action agencies in Michigan serve as catalysts for innovative partnerships with such examples as the Wayne Metropolitan Community Action Agency, which in 2010 has assisted over 12,800 residents from 22 local aid sites in areas focusing on community and economic development, homeless and housing services, youth and family educational services, stability and life skills services, and basic needs; and

Whereas, Michigan's community action agencies have leveraged their federal allocation of the Community Services Block Grant and other federal, state, local, and private sources of funding to create more than $412 million in economic activity statewide in 2012; now, therefore, be it
