Senate Bill 223 (as reported without amendment)
Sponsor: Senator Stephanie Chang
Committee: Judiciary and Public Safety

CONTENT

The bill would amend the Revised School Code to do the following:

- Require the Department of Education to develop informational material relating to sexual assault and sexual harassment appropriate for pupils in grades six through 12.
- Require the Department to make the material available to all public schools that operate grades six through 12.
- Require public schools to disseminate to pupils the informational material.
- Require public schools to disseminate to pupils contact information for the school's Title IX coordinator and the school's policies on sexual assault and sexual harassment.
- Encourage public schools to provide sexual assault and sexual harassment response training to all educators and school personnel who had contact with pupils.

The bill would take effect 90 days after its enactment.

FISCAL IMPACT

The bill would have no fiscal impact on the Department of Education and a minimal fiscal impact on local school districts, ISDs, and PSAs. The Department of Education is required by the Department of Education budget bill to develop these materials in collaboration with the Department of Health and Human Services, which means the costs would be incorporated into current appropriations. The bill would make the requirement permanent and not subject to annual appropriation bills.

Local school district, ISDs, and PSAs could experience a minimal fiscal impact to disseminate the materials from the Department of Education and to require training for school employees every five years. The costs would be greater for schools that currently do not provide information to student or require the employee training specified in the bill. Since many school districts, ISDs, and PSAs provide related materials to students and require staff training, the costs likely would be minimal for the remaining schools to conform to the bill's requirements.
